“ Hey dad, yesterday marked 12 years and I don't know how to feel. I can't cry, I'm not mad, I'm numb. I still haven't come to terms with your death and I don't think I ever will. I still blame myself to this day for it. I miss you like crazy and I look at your obituary almost daily because I just wish you were still here. Everything of you has been erased from this earth and I hate it. I wish I could text you and just tell you about my day even tho you aren't alive anymore it would at least be like you are. I'm now 17, I have my license now and I'm about to go into my senior year of highschool. It sucks because I know when I walk across that stage you won't be there cheering me on but you will from the clouds about. I don't remember your voice anymore, yesterday I went to go get my bestfriend summer and I seen a guy that looked just like you driving a red truck and I had to do a double take because I just keep thinking I'll turn and you'll be there, that this is all a dream. I love you dad and I always will and that'll never go away, keep painting the skies beautifully and I hope I continue to make you proud. I love you, goodbye for now, until we meet again❤️

“ Hey dad, it's Cassidy your youngest, life has been really hard. I'm starting to get why a dad is part of a kids life, because at times you really need them. Right now I'm having one of those times. I miss you dearly, I wish you were still here so I could just hug you, and you can reassure me everything's gonna be okay. It's going on 11 years this month, I'm gonna be sixteen. I got my permit earlier this year. Soon I'll be driving. I'm back in ironton, I'll live here permanently now. I really miss you dad, I'm starting to realize you won't see me in a prom dress, a wedding dress and you won't be walking me down an aisle, it really sucks seeing other girls having a bond with their dads and I can't have that with you. I know you're watching over me and I hope you're proud of me. One thing I can say is I understand why you did it, and I forgive you, I forgave you a while ago, grandpa Joe passed this year to, so I hope you met up with him in heaven, I miss him dearly as well, I hope he's proud to. I love you dad, you paint the sky's beautifully
