“ I enjoyed Elizabeth's bright and cheery voice when we spoke on Thursdays around noon. She was eager to tell me if the sun was shining and always asked how I was. I will miss her well wishes and her stories profound faith that shone bright.

“ Though we went to the same church, it wasn't until I treated Elizabeth in the PT clinic that we became friends After she broke her ankle, I did several things to help her out, . Maybe twenty years ago, I had shoulder surgery and couldn't drive. One day, she offered to take me to my PT appt and then take me out to lunch. She escorted me to the car, fastened my seatbelt and let me out right in front of the door, with my yelling the whole time, "I can do that myself!" That day, she told me a very important lesson, that I still follow and share with others: when you are able to help others, you do it. When you yourself need help, accept it gratefully and be glad you have friends who are willing to help. And by the way, when we had lunch, I had to ask her to cut my meat. She was a very sweet lady.

“ Elizabeth was sweet and so fun to visit with. Thoughtful, spunky, determined. Always loved her big glasses. There were a many of us who delighted in knowing her during her years at Kirkwood Baptist, and some of us stayed in touch with visits to Ironton, or phone calls, or saw her when she came to St. Louis. What a fine person!

“ Elizabeth was a very sweet lady who loved the Lord. Even though she was not a member of our church, First Baptist of Ironton, she would attend any time we were having services and her church was not having services. I loved visiting with her.

Elizabeth is a member of Kirkwood Baptist Church when I first began attending KBC. She was one of the first to welcome me to the service. I visited with Elizabeth several times after she moved to Ironton. It was fun sharing stories with her. Just think, she has a whole new neighborhood with whom to visit. RIP Elizabeth.
