“ Ron was my running partner and friend in high school. We ran side by side in cross country and talked for 3 years. When he ran under any street sign, he would reach up and slap it and say "oww", pretending to hit his head and smile. The joke never got old for him. I remember how much he loved his brothers. I couldnt relate to that, I had brothers. Our little group of friends cherished him and things always got happier when he showed up. I think of him often and miss him.
